

Euro 2024 Sweepstake

June – July

The Rules

You'll need to play as part of a household living at the same address, or as part of a club or society. By playing only within these arrangements (and not advertising to the general public) you'll avoid the need to register for a Gambling Licence. For more information on running a sweepstake or raffle legally visit the Gambling Commission website.

Prizes

You could offer the sweepstake winner(s) a percentage of the money raised from the game, with the rest being donated to Downright Excellent, or give them a non-monetary prize of your choice, such as a box of chocolates, and donate the entire proceeds of the game to Downright Excellent (you can deduct reasonable expenses for prizes).

Spread the word

If you're part of a club or society, you can spread the word about your fundraising football sweepstake via newsletters, emails or over video call at meetings. Try to aim for at least 21 sweepstake players, one for each Euro football team; if you have fewer than 21 players you can opt to give people more than one team, but these should be split equally and could result in some teams not being assigned. If you have more than 21, then you may end up with multiple winners, in which case they would need to agree to share the prize.

Kick off!

Choose who will get each football team by pulling names out of a hat using our handy cut-out team sheet, or if you're doing it virtually you can create a live draw online via:

<https://www.sweepstakegenerator.com/generator/euro-2024/>.

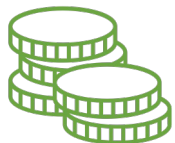

Sit back, follow and enjoy the games together. When the tournament is over and the winner of the Euro finals takes the cup, you can give your winning sweepstake player(s) their prize! If you haven't already, you can then also make your donation to Downright Excellent from the proceeds of your sweepstake.

Extra time?

You could make more of the tournament by arranging a Euro-themed bake off or a penalty shoot out competition in the garden or nearby park.

If you need any support to run your sweepstake or would like to chat about any other fundraising ideas, then please contact the Downright Excellent team at hello@downrightexcellent.org.
